Evangelia Xingi, Staff Scientist, HPI Bioimaging Unit (BU)

Evangelia Xingi, biologist with a PhD in Molecular Parasitology is Staff Scientist and technical responsible of the HPI BU. She is specialized in Confocal Microscopy, 2-photon CNS intravital imaging, Live Cell Imaging technologies and the development of Image Analysis pipelines, using open-source and commercially available tools. She collaborates and trains scientists of HPI (master, PhD students, post docs and researchers) and other academic scientists on the above mentioned expertise fields. She is also actively involved as a member in research programs of the BU and collaborating laboratories, funded by national and international sources and she has participated as a co-organizer and instructor in workshops and educational activities of the BU.

Updated list of publications:
https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/?term=xingi%20e